

We find ourselves in a moment in which we are deeply polarized as a nation by divides—cultural, religious, political—that impact our communities and even our families. At this critical juncture, we want to advocate a simple model for effecting social change: working at the grassroots level in our neighborhoods, workplaces, schools, houses of worship, and civic organizations to model the civility and respect we want to see upheld by everyone.

This is why Islamic Networks Group is launching the Know Your Neighbor: Multifaith Encounters Campaign with simple tools and resources for reaching out to build mutual understanding and respect. We believe that if enough Americans engage in one or two simple grassroots encounters, we can strengthen our communities, foster relations among all Americans, and live up to our national ideal of pluralism and acceptance.

We invite you to participate in this effort by using the suggestions and resources on the KYN webpage for individual, community, and youth actions.

What can individuals do to create inclusive communities?

Ways to Participate

- ◆ Have a quick conversation with a stranger while waiting in line at the grocery store or riding on public transit
- ◆ Invite a neighbor or co-worker out for coffee, or talk to your neighbor while sitting on a plane
- ◆ Invite people to your home to share a meal
- ◆ Invite friends or neighbors to your house of worship or community center
- ◆ Increase your impact by sharing your story with others on social media
- ◆ Attend an event hosted by a community that you are not familiar with
- ◆ Write a letter to someone who identifies with a religion different from your own
